

RATE CONFERENCE
WILL BE HELD SOON

Mayor Ross Informs Indiana Commission That Early Meeting Will be Satisfactory.

MAY BE CALLED NEXT WEEK

Board of Works Will Discuss Matter at Its Next Meeting, November 23—Water Rates.

Seymour has received its full quota of attention from the Indiana Public Service Commission during the last few months. The gas rates have been reduced as a result of an informal conference which was arranged by the commission and two other petitions, one affecting the local electric light company and the second the Seymour Water Company, are still pending.

Several days ago Mayor Ross received a communication from the Commission stating that it would be ready to send one of its members here to preside at a second conference between the city officials and the representatives of the Interstate Public Service Commission relative to the request that the electric rates be reduced. Mayor Ross was out of the city for several days, but returned yesterday and immediately wrote the Commission that the board of works would meet next Tuesday night and that the matter would then be taken up. He said that the conference could probably be arranged at any time in the near future and suggested that the Commission set the date.

At this conference an effort will be made to reach a satisfactory agreement and avoid the necessity of taking the case before the commission in the regular way. The conference was suggested by Commissioner Clark at the time he presided over the first conference when the gas rates were reduced.

The commission ordered a financial survey made of the local plant. This has been done and the accountants' reports filed with the commission. Copies of the statement have been filed with the mayor and other officials. Upon this report the commission will rely to determine the exact valuation of the property here and the income received from the electric light plant. The company is entitled to a reasonable rate of interest upon its investment allowing for depreciation of property.

Another case pending before the Commission is that relative to the local water rates. After the petition was filed the attorneys for the local water company filed suit in federal court asking that a temporary injunction be filed against the commission to prevent it from attempting to regulate rates. The court indicated that it had no authority to issue an injunction against a threatened action and the temporary injunction was dismissed. That action was taken last July. Later an effort was made to secure a permanent injunction against the Commission but that action was also dismissed for the same reason.

The dismissal of this action by the attorneys for the water company means that the Commission will have free rein to investigate the rates of the local company. The attorneys conferred here about ten days ago and decided to dismiss the suit. It was stated then, however, that they did not intend to drop their fight and if the Commission ordered the rates reduced they would then take their case into federal court to ask that the Commission be prevented from carrying out its order. Such a suit will be of vital interest throughout the state as it will involve the authority of the Commission in the future.

S. S. CONFERENCE WILL OPEN WITH BANQUET FRIDAY NIGHT

M. E. Ladies Will Serve the Menu in Sclarra Room, S. Chestnut St. at 6:30 P. M.

Arrangements are practically completed for the Elementary Conference of Sunday School workers to be held in Seymour Friday, Saturday and Sunday. A banquet served by the ladies of the M. E. church in the new Sclarra room on South Chestnut will open the conference Friday evening at 6:30 o'clock. A program of toasts has been arranged following the menu.

The real work of the conference will begin Saturday morning. The sessions will be held in the Baptist and St. Paul's church where the delegates can divide themselves conveniently into groups for the various departments. A splendid program of strong speakers has been arranged for all of Saturday and Sunday, closing with a union meeting of several churches Sunday night.

Every Sunday School worker in Seymour should arrange to attend all sessions possible as the program is the equal of those presented at the big state conventions. Mrs. Mary Foster Bryner is a speaker of international reputation and all the other speakers are state workers.

AGED FARMER EAST OF CITY SUDDENLY STRICKEN TODAY

Casper Wyse, 87, Drops Dead on Porch After Carrying Armload of Wood Into the Kitchen.

After carrying an armload of wood from the yard into the kitchen and then rinsing his face, Casper Wyse, eighty-seven years old, walked to the porch at his country home, near the County Line, and was fatally stricken with apoplexy. He died before anyone could reach him. Because of his age he had not been in the best of health for some time, but his condition was not regarded as serious.

Mrs. Wyse is seriously ill at her home and it is feared that the sudden death of her husband will result in a serious nervous shock to her. Mr. Wyse had lived on the farm situated near the Jackson and Jennings county line for many years. He was a native of Switzerland and came to this country when quite young. He is survived by a family of grown children.

The funeral will occur Saturday morning at 10 o'clock at the Reddington Christian church. Burial at Reddington cemetery.

DOCTORS DISCUSS
CASE IN CHICAGO

Opinion Divided Relative to Permitting Deformed Child to Die Without Operation.

WIDE INTEREST IN THE CASE

Many Local Physicians Take View That Medical Attendant Took Right Course.

In Seymour, as in other cities, there is a divided opinion as to whether or not the attending physician was justified in allowing the deformed child born to Mr. and Mrs. Allen Bollinger, in Chicago, to die when a slight operation would have saved its life. The matter has been given much publicity throughout the country and following the babe's death an investigation has been instituted by the officials in Chicago.

Dr. H. J. Haiselden, the physician, says he could have saved the baby's life, but refused to do so on the ground that if the child lived it would be a defective and a menace to itself and society in general. The physician obtained the consent of the baby's mother to permit nature to take its course which resulted in its death.

Local physicians are almost unanimously of the opinion that the attending physician pursued the right course. They say that he was present, could see the baby and would know whether or not it would become a normal child.

"I think the physician did the right thing," said one physician here today when asked for an opinion. "The child was not normal. From what I have read of the case it would have been a defective of the worst type, and should the child have lived it would never have been accountable for its acts. Until I hear more of the case, I am inclined to believe that it was right to allow nature to take its course."

"Dr. Haiselden was absolutely right," declared another physician. "The child, if it would have lived with an operation, would never have been normal. Its little brain was not of normal size. Had it lived it would have been a menace to itself, its parents and to society. It was not a human in the true sense of the word. It had only partial shape of a human and would have been without normal senses. Such cases as these are misfortunes of nature. We pity dumb animals when they are in misery and believe them better dead than alive in agony. I think the same thing is true of bodies which cannot belong to fully developed humans."

Other physicians expressed similar opinions and were anxiously awaiting for the full account of the case which will be published in their medical journals.

POULTRY SHIPPED
UNDER U.S. METHOD

Experts of Food Research Laboratory of Dept. of Agriculture Here to Supervise Turkey Shipments.

DEMONSTRATION CAR IS USED

Government Seeking to Prevent Loss of Poultry Caused by Improper Packing and Shipping.

A series of experiments to demonstrate the practical value of the proper preparation of turkeys for shipment to the Eastern markets is being conducted at the plant of the Seymour Poultry Co. by H. L. Shrader and H. C. Albin, experts from the food research laboratory of the Department of Agriculture, Washington. The work is being done by the department in order to encourage the adoption of the system by poultry shippers over the country, and thus reduce the annual loss caused by poultry reaching the markets in a condition unfit for use. "This is an economic proposition with the government," said Mr. Shrader this morning, "and our department is trying to reduce the unnecessary loss by a campaign of education among the shippers. Every year thousands of dollars worth of poultry is condemned in the great Eastern markets because it reaches the market in a condition that does not measure up to the required standards of the pure food laws. This is of course, largely due to improper preparation and packing on the part of the shippers. We are trying to prevent, or at least reduce, this loss by demonstrating the best known system of preparation."

The work is being done in the special demonstration car of the department, in which Mr. Shrader and Mr. Albin last summer conducted demonstrations of the candling and grading of eggs in Seymour. The method used in preparing the birds for shipment is the "dry pack" method in which they are cooled to an inside temperature of approximately 32 degrees. The car is equipped with a gasoline engine and dynamo, and the air, after being forced through the ice tank in one end of the car, is distributed evenly throughout the refrigerating room through apertures in the top of the room. The temperature in the car stands at about 34 degrees during the process of cooling the birds, but the inside temperature of the birds is the thing that is watched most closely. As the smaller birds cool more rapidly than the larger ones, the largest one of the turkeys is used as the test. Approximately twelve hours is required to get all the body heat out of the birds and have them ready for shipment, although this varies and can be regulated by maintaining a colder temperature in the room.

Mr. Shrader and Mr. Albin will be here until after Thanksgiving, and will look after the preparation of all of the local companies' poultry. "Indiana is one of the great poultry shipping states," says Mr. Shrader, "and I am sure that the department is giving a great deal of attention to the situation in this territory."

Last year at this season Mr. Shrader was at Boston watching the shipments from the middle western states come in, and this year he is at the other end of the line, helping prepare a part of this year's shipment so it will reach the Eastern markets in first class shape.

The local produce companies are daily shipping hundreds of turkeys to the Eastern markets. Shipments for the Thanksgiving markets in the East will be made by express up until about Monday. After then shipments will be made to points closer home.

MUNICIPAL CHRISTMAS TREE COMMITTEE IN SESSION

Arrangements are Discussed and Detailed Announcement will be Made Tomorrow.

The committee having charge of the Municipal Christmas Tree was in session this afternoon but announced about 3:30 o'clock that arrangements would not be completed until tomorrow.

The committee plans to make this celebration the most attractive that has ever been held in Seymour during the holidays and because of the nature of it liberal support is being given by the merchants and citizens in general. It is planned to give each child attending the entertainment on Tuesday night a "Christmas treat" of candy and fruit. A program appropriate for the occasion is also contemplated.

Notifies Secretary of State that He Does Not Desire to Enter the Campaign.

By United Press.

Washington, November 18.—Justice Charles E. Hughes of the United States supreme court, today announced his formal declination of the candidacy for the presidency on the Republican ticket as placed on the official primary ballot in Nebraska.

In a letter to the secretary of the state of Nebraska today Justice Hughes said:

"A petition having been filed with you November 13, 1915, requesting that my name be placed upon the official primary ballot of the Republican party for the primary election to be held in Nebraska, April 16, 1916, as a candidate for the office of president of the United States, I hereby notify you that I decline the nomination made by this petition or similar petitions and request that my name be not placed upon the ballots at such primary elections."

Justice Hughes' letter was accompanied by oath made before a notary public testifying as to its authenticity.

BOYD RESIGNS PLACE AS PROGRESSIVE CHAIRMAN

Greencastle Attorney Announces that He Filed His Resignation with Committee Month Ago.

By United Press.

Greencastle, Ind., November 18.—Jackson Boyd announced today that he resigned as the chairman of the state progressive party a month ago. He said that as he understood the committee planned to keep his resignation secret he made this announcement and gave reasons. He resigned, he said, because the management of the party was taken from the hands of the members. Boyd asserts his action did not result from any lack of party loyalty.

LOCAL INTEREST IN PURDUE-I.U. GAME

Many Alumni and Former Students of Both Schools to Attend Big Game Saturday.

VOSS IS INDIANA MAINSTAY

Local Boy One of Coach Child's Strongest Factors on Defense, Swope May Also Play.

Friday will see an exodus of local alumni and former students of Indiana and Purdue to Bloomington, where the annual Purdue Indiana football clash will be staged Saturday afternoon on Jordan Field. Most of those going from here will go Friday, in order to be on hand for the celebrations and functions that have been arranged for the visitors, while several will leave early Saturday for the scene of the game. One of the largest crowds that ever saw a game at Bloomington is expected to be on hand when the whistle blows. More than 5000 tickets have already been sold and more reservations are being received daily.

Interest in the game locally is increased because of the fact that Seymour will be represented by at least one and probably two players on the Indiana team. Walter Voss is playing the center position regularly, and will be one of the strong points of the Indiana defense, while Joe Swope may also get into the big game Saturday. Swope did not come out until the season was well under way, but has since been showing up in good form. Voss is playing his last year in a crimson uniform and his work has been one of the main factors in the steady and consistent work of Coach Child's team.

The outcome of the game is, of course, only a matter for speculation. Indiana has probably a slightly better record on the season, but they have shown a lack of punch in their attack throughout the year, noticeably in the Washington and Lee and Ohio state games. Purdue's defeat by Kentucky state last Saturday is cited by Indiana supporters as proof that the Crimson will have an easy time of it with the Boilermakers, but it is certain that Indiana will face a far different Purdue team than did Kentucky state. For that matter, both teams will be spurred to their greatest efforts by the ancient rivalry between the two schools, and the game they will put up on Saturday will probably be altogether different from anything they have shown thus far.

A sentimental interest attaches to the game in that it will be the last game to be played on Jordan Field, which will give way to the new Athletic field to be constructed in connection with the new gymnasium, and Indiana students, alumni and players are hoping to close the final chapter of the historic old field with a victory over their Lafayette rivals.

The News of Sumter.

Indiana received the news of the firing on Sumter on Friday, Oct. 18. "Through the long Saturday that followed, business was at a stand.... The streets were black with breathless multitudes. At ten o'clock a dispatch was announced, 'Sumter has fallen.' Young men and men in middle life looked at the white faces and wet eyes of old and venerated citizens who stood in the street waiting for tidings and a great stillness fell upon them. They turned to separate and crept silently to their homes. No one present upon the eventful Sunday which followed will ever forget it."

The theme of the crisis permeated all the church services. In Indianapolis two monster mass meetings were held which pledged support to the Government.

GOVERNMENT OWNERSHIP IN BATTLESHIP BUILDING

Secretary Daniels Says This is Contemplated Because of Recent Serious Situation.

By United Press.

Washington, November 18.—Secretary Daniels announced today that a plan is being considered that contemplates government ownership of practically every element of battleship building. The reason, he said, was the most serious situation that has arisen in our national defense program.

The greatest enemy of your teeth

When scientists recently discovered the cause of that dread disease, pyorrhea, they discovered the greatest enemy of your teeth. Why yours? Because the germ that causes this disease inhabits every human mouth!

Your dentist will tell you that half of all the permanent teeth lost are lost from this disease. This is because people have not realized before that everyone should take precautions against this enemy. You can start now to ward off its constant attack and escape the terrible results of this disease by using the proper corrective and preventive treatment in your daily toilet.

To meet the need for this treatment and to enable everyone to take precautions against this disease, a prominent dentist has put his own prescription before the public in the convenient form of Senreco Tooth Paste. Senreco contains the best corrective and preventive for pyorrhea known to dental science. Used daily it will successfully protect your teeth from this disease. Senreco also contains the best harmless agent for keeping the teeth clean and white. It has a refreshing flavor and leaves a wholesomely clean, cool and pleasant taste in the mouth.

Start the Senreco treatment tonight—full details in the folder wrapped around every tube. Symptoms described. A 25c two oz. tube is sufficient for six or eight weeks of the pyorrhea treatment. Get Senreco at your druggists today, or send 4c in-stamps or coin for sample tube and folder. Address The Senreco Remedies Co., 502 Union Central Bldg., Cincinnati, Ohio.

GOVERNMENT WILL SEND VIGOROUS REPLY TO AUSTRIA

Information Given State Department by Only American Survivor of the Ship.

By United Press. Washington, November 18.—Protest to Austria regarding the sinking of the Ancona will be made by the United States as the result of information obtained today from the only known American survivor, Dr. Cecile L. Greile. An affidavit from Mrs. Greile says that the Ancona was bombed by the submarine after the vessel had stopped. The bombardment continued forty-five minutes, she said. Many passengers were killed and wounded, she stated. She did not state whether the Ancona tried to flee when ordered to halt. The information received by the state department that passengers were subjected to fire from the submarine when the vessel stopped, leaves the government no alternative but to file a vigorous protest with Austria. This fact alone will necessitate negotiations regardless of the Ancona's alleged attempt to escape.

Distress in the Stomach.

There are many people who have a distress in the stomach after meals. It is due to indigestion and easily remedied by taking one of Chamberlain's Tablets after meals. Mrs. Henry Padgham, Victor, N. Y., writes: "For some time I was troubled with headache and distress in my stomach after eating, also with constipation. About six months ago I began taking Chamberlain's Tablets. They regulated the action of my bowels and the headache and other annoyances ceased in a short time." Obtainable everywhere. Advertisement.

CITY MANAGER'S PLAN EXPLAINED

A. Strauss, of Alpena, Mich., Thinks New System is Improvement Over Indiana Methods.

ONE MAN HELD RESPONSIBLE

City Government is Conducted on Much the Same Plan Used by Banking Institutions.

Greater efficiency in city government is receiving attention in a great many places throughout the United States. Seymour is no exception and informal discussions of the various plans adopted by different cities to bring this about are frequently heard wherever business men and citizens meet. Some of the plans in use are entirely different from the councilmanic form of government in use in Indiana cities.

One well known plan which has been adopted in several cities recently is known as the city manager's plan. It is admitted that it has faults as well as advantages but those in favor of it say it has fewer faults than the old system of city government.

Alpena, Mich., has voted to inaugurate the city manager's plan, and an explanation of the system was made by A. Strauss, a member of the firm that owns the Gold Mine Department Store in this city. Mr. Strauss is in charge of the Alpena Store and was influential in bringing about the change in that city.

"The city manager's plan is concentration of power," said Mr. Strauss. "Larger duties are turned over to one man who is held accountable to the people. The citizens place the responsibility in him and if there is a lack of efficiency or a waste of public funds he must be responsible."

Mr. Strauss said that the form of government at Alpena was similar to that in use at Dayton, O., but certain changes had been made to conform to the local needs. "The city manager's form of government is very similar to the system used in banks," said Mr. Strauss. "The board of directors, or councilmen as we call them, act in the same capacity as the directors of a bank. They are elected by the people. The council selects the manager who receives about $3,000 a year. The council or directors have final jurisdiction but advise with the manager before important action is taken. In the matter of bids, the manager receives them and makes his recommendations to the council. In conducting the detailed work in connection with the city government the manager has practically absolute control."

The councilmen are elected at large by a preferential system of voting. Political parties are eliminated. Any citizen can get his name on the ballot by filing a petition containing the names of fifty legal voters. If there are four candidates each voter can vote for first, second and third choice. If no candidate is elected on the first choice the first and second choices are added and if there is no majority the first, second and third choices are added. The one receiving the highest number of votes combined is then declared elected regardless of the number received.

Mr. Strauss says that the benefit of the plan is use at Alpena is that party politics is eliminated from the affairs of the government. The change will go into effect April 1.

ANTI-SALOON LEAGUE HAS BREAK WITH HANLY

Officials Charge That He Took Unfair Advantage in Proposing New Temperance Party.

By United Press.

Indianapolis, November 18—No attempt was made at the headquarters of the Anti-Saloon League today to disguise the fact that a break had come between Frank J. Hanly, former governor, and the League following Hanly's unsuccessful attempt to control the temperance convention.

The Anti-Saloon League considers that Hanly took an unfair advantage of the League and the audience at the state convention when, after an eloquent speech favoring a new party to fight for prohibition, he asked all the audience in favor of the proposed party to stand. Hanly's personal ambition to lead the proposed new party was uppermost, according to an official of the League, who said Hanly was invited to speak merely out of courtesy.

At Mr. Hanly's home today it was stated that he was out of the city.

Corn Limpers! Use "Gets-It" and Smile!

Corns Come Right Off, Clean and Quick! You Needn't Limp, or Fuss With Your Corns Any More!

What's the use of spoiling a good time for yourself by limping around with fierce corns? It's one of the easiest things in the world, now, to get rid of them. "Gets-It" does it the new way. That's why "Gets-It" has become the corn remedy of America, the biggest selling corn remedy in the world, preferred by millions. Do you remember that too-tasting salve you tried, that sticky tape, that too-bundling bandage, the gouging you've done with knives, razors and scissors? Well now, forget them all. No more fussing, no more pain. Whenever you use simple, easy "Gets-It," the corn is doomed, sure. So is every callus, wart or bunion. Never cut corns or calluses, it makes them grow that much faster and increases the danger of blood poisoning. No cutting is necessary by using "Gets-It." Use it tonight and end your corny existence. "Gets-It" is sold by all druggists, 25c a bottle, or sent direct by E. Lawrence & Co., Chicago. Sold in Seymour and recommended as the world's best corn remedy, by C. E. Loertz and H. H. Carter.

"These Corns Come Right Off, Clean As a Whistle, by Using 'Gets-It'"

PLAN EXCITES INTEREST

Proposed to Abolish Comptroller of the Currency Office.

Washington, Nov. 18.—The chief topic of interest in financial and political circles is the recommendation to the federal reserve board, by its advisory council, for the abolition of the office of comptroller of the currency. The board announced that this and other proposals made by the advisory council "have not received consideration or action of any kind."

The suggested amendment to the federal reserve act creates a problem over which serious differences of opinion will arise within the board. Banking authorities who favor the change, deplore the fact that the personality of Comptroller Williams had to be involved.

It was reiterated in this connection that the proposal grows out of the conviction on the part of the advisory council that the office has become practically obsolete with the operation of the new currency law.

BATTLESHIP BIDS OPENED

Discloses Increased Cost Owing to War Conditions.

Washington, Nov. 18.—Bids for the construction of the battleships authorized by congress opened here disclosed the fact that war conditions have greatly increased the cost of building these vessels and indicated that the period required for their construction will be longer than ever before.

Officials were inclined to believe, after examining the bids that it might be necessary to ask congress for additional appropriations for these vessels as the cost under the bids submitted would exceed the amounts fixed by the appropriation act. They also believe that it will be considerably more than four years from the date of authorization of these ships, March 1, 1915, before they will be delivered to the government; that is, they would probably not join the fleet until in the year 1919.

FIRE OF INCENDIARY ORIGIN

War Supplies For Russia Burned at Providence, R. I.

Providence, R. I., Nov. 18.—A fire undoubtedly of incendiary origin, occurred in the Providence Warehouse company's building on Mason street, the object of which was the destruction of one thousand bales of cotton, stored there within the past week, by the Riverside Spinning company of Philadelphia, which was prepared for gun cotton and was to have been shipped to New York to be forwarded to the Russian government.

The incendiary must have set some machine in the warehouse the day before, for when it was closed for the night everything was in a safe condition. The first spread so rapidly that the entire business section of the city was endangered, necessitating a general alarm. Ten thousand dollars was the loss on the cotton and $50,000 in autos in two adjoining buildings.

SALE OF BRIDE AND GROOM TO BE MADE NOVEMBER 26

Couple Does not Desire to be Separated and Buyer will Have to Take Both of Them.

Announcement is made that a bride and a groom will be sold at public auction on Friday night, November 26. It rather sounds like the days of slavery have returned but that is not the case as the blushing bride and the embarrassed groom are lifeless, but will gladden the heart of some little girl on Christmas. The sale will be made at the Doll Bazaar which is to be held at the Sciara Building on South Chestnut street.

Arrangements have been made by the Municipal Christmas Tree committee and the ladies of the Methodist church, the latter holding the bazaar, whereby the proceeds from the sale of the bride and groom will be divided equally. The doll bazaar is given by the Methodist church for the benefit of the pipe organ.

The Modern Public Library

(By Gertrude E. Aiken, Librarian, Seymour Public Library.)

With the words public library our thought naturally turns to the pretty little building on Second street and its collection of from five to six thousand books, and we ask ourselves, What is the relation of this little library to the thousands of others, large and small, throughout the country?

The older libraries were, we know, rather exclusive institutions patronized only by a few scholars and bookworms. Children were seldom allowed to take home a book and were considered a nuisance in the reading room. Now all this is changed. In New York City alone over 8,000,000 books are circulated each year by the public library and its branches, and moreover one-third of these are read by children.

Instead of waiting with hands folded for people to come to the library for books, librarians everywhere are bestirring themselves to find a reader for every book and a book for every reader. That is the slogan of the librarian of today. She knows that the libraries are full of interesting books and that one need not be a student or a bookworm to enjoy a good book.

Arrangement of Books.

This bigger and broader library movement dates back to the conference of the American Library Association held at Philadelphia in 1876. The intervening period of forty years has been marked by unusual activity. First technical improvements were made. Books were arranged upon the shelves according to their subject matter and numbered or lettered in this order to insure their return to their right places. The numbering system is used by most public libraries. It was invented by Melvil Dewey, of New York, and is known as the Dewey decimal classification system.

More full and accurate cataloging of the books was found to be necessary if they were to be widely read, and a new system of cataloging on cards was generally adopted. Its advantages over the book form of catalogue are apparent if you stop to consider that any book catalogue must be out of date and incomplete even before it is out of the printer's hands where new books are frequently being added. The card catalogue on the other hand is kept constantly up to date by simply adding, in alphabetical arrangement, card entries of the newest books.

An ideal catalog of books for the small library was issued in 1893 by the publishing board of the American Library Association. This is fully annotated, and has been an invaluable aid to thousands of librarians as a buying and cataloging guide. This book is kept up to date by the A. L. A. Booklist, a monthly publication which contains excellent advice for small libraries regarding the best of the new books to buy.

Books of General Interest.

The centennial year also marks the beginning of recognition by librarians of their full duty to the tax paying public. They began to realize that their responsibility was greater than that of custodians of public property. As the public library was supported by a general tax it fulfilled its obligations to the community only by purchasing books which would be of interest and of service to all. All classes, all trades and all social and educational institutions should be represented as far as possible. This resulted in the addition of books on farming, mechanical trades, the professions, choice of an occupation, housekeeping, city management and improvement, advertising, etc.

Advertising Is Necessary.

The next step was to let the people know that the libraries had these books for them, so that they might get full value for money spent. Advertising was then put into service for a new and wholly altruistic purpose and the results have been marked. Street car ads, electric signs, ads in the moving picture theaters, books displayed in downtown store windows, children's story hours, lectures, lists, picture bulletins, exhibits and moving pictures at the library building are a few of the publicity methods of the up to date public library.

Commissions Are Helpful.

All of this activity has been greatly aided by library commissions which are established in twenty-five states. These institutions are operated at the expense of the state, and their purpose is the organization of libraries wherever they can be supported, and the aid and supervision of those already in existence.

Twenty-nine states maintain traveling public libraries, boxes of books which are loaned to districts where there is no public library or where the library service is inadequate. Through their traveling libraries the Indiana Commission located at Indianapolis, circulated 76,000 volumes during the past two years.

Lecturers and exhibits are also furnished by the state commissions, and most of them maintain library schools. These schools are for short courses given during the summer months. A person known as a trained librarian, however, is a graduate of one of the regular library schools, which offer courses of one or two years. The New York State Library School at Albany and the Illinois Library School at Urbana give two-year courses and require a college diploma for entrance. Pittsburgh and Cleveland conduct training schools for children's librarians and Wisconsin University, besides its summer and one-year schools offers a course for librarians of special libraries.

There are various library associations holding annual meetings. Besides the national association each state has its organization. The Indiana State Library Association met at Gary last week. The program was an interesting one, dealing with the extension of town and city libraries into rural districts, the new social spirit in library service, and the wider use of the lecture room found in all modern library buildings. This week the regular annual meeting of library trustees will be held at Indianapolis.

The profession supports several monthly periodicals, which are indispensable to all librarians, keeping them in touch, as they do, with the best work of libraries throughout the world. Many a disheartened worker has been stimulated to fresh endeavor by reading of the final success of another's brave efforts to accomplish much good with very, very little money.

Duties of Librarians.

Probably there are very few librarians who have not been asked the question, "What do you do with all your spare time at the library? You must get a lot of reading or crocheting done." Few library patrons have any knowledge of what a librarian is busy about when she is not waiting on the readers. As a matter of fact she does so many things one does not know where to begin to enumerate them. In the morning she counts the cards for books issued the day before, and files them away alphabetically. Notices are sent for books overdue, books are mended and are shelved in their proper subject or alphabetical order, new periodicals are opened and entered, lists, notices and articles are prepared for the papers, book reviews are read and compared and order lists made to submit to the book committee of the library board. When the new books arrive they must be checked up by this list, entered in the accession book, classified by the Dewey decimal system, mentioned above, catalogued, pocketed, and stamped with the name of the library before they are ready for circulation. In the afternoon and the evening the librarian is busy issuing books and helping the children, club women and business men in every way she can. Besides this, there are occasional visits to be made to the schools and the factories and the rural stations, where the books are changed every month or two.

The present day public library is generally admitted to be an efficient institution, but it has many ideals which are not yet realized. One of these is that its librarians may be more frequently able to answer from personal knowledge the oft repeated questions, "Is this a good book? What is it about?"

A Bird's Christmas Tree.

In the Christmas issue of the Woman's Home Companion is told the following scheme of a bird lover to carry good cheer out of doors:

"She procured a little tree about three feet high, decorated it with strings of popcorn and cranberries, and, in deference to the birds' taste, added roasted peanuts and small pieces of suet—the choicest delicacy of all. The tree was placed on the roof of the porch, and proved so popular with the birds that she declares that every year, without an exception, her Christmas will include a tree for the birds."

To Remove Dust from Velvet.

If a piece of black crepe is used (mourning crepe) instead of a brush it will take every particle of dust away and make the velvet look new.

Favorite Recipes

SPONGE CAKE.

Beat yolks and whites of five eggs separately. Into the yolks stir one cup sugar and scant teaspoon flour well sifted with a level teaspoon of baking powder. Beat long—at least twenty minutes. Add a teaspoonful of flavor to suit taste and fold in lightly the stiff whites. Bake in large loaf or round tin, as this cake will double in size. Bake in steady oven. It should be done in three-quarters of an hour. This cake is just as cheap as other cakes in spite of using five eggs, as there is no milk or butter used, and it has never failed.

ORANGE COOKIES.

One-quarter cup butter, one cup sugar, three egg yolks, three teaspoonfuls baking powder, two tablespoonfuls orange juice, two teaspoonfuls grated orange rind and two cups flour. Cream butter, add sugar and egg yolks one at a time, add orange juice and rind, flour and baking powder sifted together. Add enough more flour to make dough stiff enough to roll, about one-quarter inch thick. Bake in quick oven.

NEW CHEESE SALAD.

Dissolve one tablespoon powdered gelatin in four tablespoons boiling water; strain and add half pound American cheese, grated, and one pint whipped cream with seasoning of salt and paprika. Pour into wet mould and allow it to become firm. Turn it out, cut in slices, place each slice on a crisp lettuce leaf. Serve with good boiled dressing. This salad will answer for twelve persons.

SWISS STEAK.

Four and one-half pounds round steak; pound well each side till all threads are out, then rub salt, pepper, flour on each side. Have spider hot with half butter and lard; put steak in, fry brown on each side, then set back on stove and simmer two and a half hours, with a cover on, slowly. Forms its own gravy. Very delicious and juicy.

THE LIGHTEST OF BISCUITS.

Two cups flour (pastry), one-fourth teaspoonful of salt, four rounding teaspoonfuls baking powder. Mix, chop into this two full tablespoonfuls butter (or lard), then add gradually one cup milk. Roll out dough, cut in small biscuits, place in greased pan and bake in quick oven for twelve minutes. Dough should be very soft.

CHOCOLATE PUDDING.

(Simple and inexpensive.) Three-fourths cup granulated sugar, one and a half teaspoonfuls corn-starch, one tablespoonful cocoa, pinch of salt, small lump butter, flavoring. Mix these together and into mixture pour one pint boiling water; let boil until desired thickness. It also makes a splendid filling for one pie.

RICE PUDDING.

One-half cup of rice, one cup raisins, one-half cup sugar, four and a half cups of milk or part cream, pinch of salt, nutmeg; after washing rice well add milk, sugar, salt and nutmeg, put in moderate oven and when rice is soft add raisins; leave in oven half hour longer.

SALMON AND GREEN TOMATO DISH.

Slice two or three green tomatoes; sprinkle with salt, let stand a few hours. Drain. Make a syrup of vinegar, water and brown sugar, a little salt and spices to taste (do not make too sweet). Boil tomatoes in syrup till tender, then add one can salmon, cook a few minutes and serve.

Proper Jewels at Formal Functions

Evening jewelry is exhaustive in its scope. It includes jewels appropriate for wear at all informal as well as for use in public places. The idea is to choose for wear during the evening just such jewels as will be suitable for use in certain predetermined places on specific occasions.

Broadly speaking, the two main types of evening affairs are divided into two classes—the formal function and the informal party. These again are subdivided under the head of home affairs and of public entertainments, or affairs outside the influence of the private house. The choice of the jewels rests on the effect to be aimed at in each instance.

For wear at home in the evenings one selects a gown with taste and discrimination; and the jewels, to be perfectly suitable and appropriate, should be chosen in harmony with gown and surroundings. Consistency is the main issue aimed at. Let us consider the several means of obtaining the desired result.

Perhaps there is to be a large dinner party, or a small dinner followed by a game of auction, for which other guests have been invited. At either of these two private affairs handsome gowns would be likely to appear, with jewels in accordance. Take for instance, the dinner party. At this ten or twelve women present may not all wear décolleté gowns, as the matrons may prefer high-necked gowns, and among the relatives or intimate friends there may be some who do not require a full-dress costume. The jewels must harmonize with the gown to carry out the informal air and easy style of this home dinner.

There is the hostess at the foot of the table in an old rose gown of soft chiffon. This is her favorite color for her dinner gowns at home, because she knows that it harmonizes well with the mahogany and leather covered walls of the dining room, and she also appreciates the importance of having the gown blend with the colors and details of the surroundings, instead of having the costume effect marred by its clashing with wall color and table decorations. She has selected simple jewelry although it is rich in detail and attractive in design. She wears a brooch set with a small emerald and pearls, and her earrings are emerald drops. Her few rings are not large nor costly.

spacious, but are well placed on her fingers, avoiding the look of a huddled mass of various colored gems. They are set with emeralds, pearls and diamonds, with one deep pink tourmaline on her little-finger ring, which reflects the color of her dress and completes the color scheme.

For wear at the formal dinner the gowning does not differ for home affairs or for public dinners; the most stately gown and the finest jewelry are called for. The point to bear in mind, though, is this—that both gown and jewels are to make their mark and gain their effect at close range. The person on your right, the person on your left and the diners directly opposite you are to be your direct critics, and a most exacting audience they will make. Fine laces, patterned materials and minute jewelry designs will hold their own at the dining table, where flat colors and bold patterning would be too glaring and noisy; and the smaller figures and more delicate detail can be used here, whereas in the ballroom they would be lost and count for nothing at all against broad splashes of color and coarse trimmings.

All-lace gowns are among the favorite dinner costumes always, and the fine, soft mesh of delicate laces makes an excellent background for handsome jewels to rest against. The tiara, collar and narrower collarette, the necklace, earrings, finger rings and bracelet are chosen with regard to their individual artistic value as well as for their place in the tout ensemble, and no detail can be too fine to overlook.

White lace over deep cream chiffon is splendid with pearls and emeralds, sapphires or rubies. The tulle gown in the second illustration gives an idea of what can be done in pearl tints and grown colors. A lace gown that is splendid with pearls and diamonds is in black lace over white, and the all-black lace gown is regal with diamonds and emeralds.

Metal laces come in tones of bronze, brown, green, gold and silver and gray; and emeralds, again, are superb with these. Rubies were used with one of the most exquisite dinner gowns devised this fall. It was in deep red velvet, with shoulder draperies of bronze metal tissue, and the jewels were a mass of small rubies, with a golden topaz in the midst of the rubies in the pendant at the neck.

The little house gown of two materials is causing a great deal of attention just now. Every couturiere seems intent upon rendering it more and more attractive, and fresh essays are made every day to add distinctive touches. The original design which is our small contribution to the galore, while following certain accepted decrees, is yet quite a distinctive little scheme. The favorite alliance of velvet and Georgette is the selected expression, and one that never fails to carry conviction. Favors are about divided so far as the skirt is concerned, the velvet, however, taking a certain assertive position in front of the skirt. The little sleeveless corsage is slightly indeterminate, a square slice being taken out beneath the arm and suggesting that an under bodice of the Georgette is worn.

The sleeves are clearly of the latter, and not should be taken of their fashioning, the cut allowing of a decided droop at the back of the wrists, the fullness being subsequently drawn up on cords, with two ruffles as a finish. Another interesting decorative detail is silver or dull gold galon, both of which are very much in favor just now; while the vest, with its picturesque roll back collar, delicately picot edged, is supported by a high roll collar of the velvet. And this is but one of similar ideas that run into hundreds. As the cold weather advances, these dresses will be worn more than ever as a balance to the weight of a fur coat. And they have unquestionably come prepared to subside into a settled acceptance.

case. Run through at intervals with basting thread to keep flat. Then they should be handled like other flannels or woolen goods. If washed separately, observe the usual precautions for woolen goods, gently squeezing through the hands and keeping the suds and rinsing water of the same lukewarm temperature. Take out of pillow case, but do not hang knitted goods up to dry. Put in an oven on a big platter, shaking and turning occasionally, or lay on a clean cloth in the sunshine.

Things Worth Knowing.

Preserve cider by boiling raisins in it, skimming and bottling. Raisins give a fine flavor and are themselves improved for further use.

When baking fish, remember to line pan with waxed papers, then there will be no disagreeably sticky dish to wash.

Take your husband's old silk knit neckties and unravel them. The silk makes excellent darning cotton and can be used for making and embroidering sofa cushions.

To Test Eggs.

Dissolve two ounces of common salt in one pint water. A fresh laid egg placed in this solution will descend into the bottom of the vessel; the egg laid on the day previous will not quite reach the bottom. If the egg be three days old it will not swim in the liquid, and if it is more than three days' old it will float on the surface and project above the latter more in proportion as it is older.

"Aren't you proud I've been so successful?" said Mary presently.
"Proud! I'm so darned happy I'm making this check out for $5,000."
"Oh, Mr. Martin!" Mary cried, quite taken aback.
"It's worth $50,000 to me to have my boy really want to work, not just to do it to please me," said the old man, really moved beneath his gruff exterior. "What a difference an incentive makes!"
"Doesn't it?" said Mary, smiling at her check.
"But what about your marriage?"
"He said he wouldn't marry me till he'd made good—if I'd just wait."
Her employer looked at her a little anxiously.
"Do you think perhaps he may really love you?" he asked.
"Of course not," said Mary.
"It's the first time he's actually wanted to marry anybody," said his father.
"Oh, it's just that I've been very blue eyed and baby faced!" said the secretary modestly.
"I guess you're right," agreed Martin.
"Of course I am. Why, dear Mr. Martin, even for this," she said, pointing to her check. "I wouldn't give your son one real pang. He's too nice a boy. When I break our engagement he may feel a bit lonely and be very sorry for himself for a few days and give up women forever, but pretty soon some charming girl of his own position—of his own world, who needs to be petted and spoiled and protected, some limousine lady—will come along, and they'll live happily ever after."
"Nonsense!" said Mr. Martin. "I don't agree with you at all. I begin to wish this marriage were going to be on the level."
"It wouldn't work out," Mary interrupted. "I'm a business woman. Marriage and the fireside and leaning on some man are not for me. I've been independent too long. I couldn't stop my work for a man, and there can't be two heads in a family—two happy heads. Even if your son did love me—really love—I wouldn't marry him. Just now he's twenty-four, with an india rubber heart that is easy to stretch and easier to snap back. All men at twenty-four are like that."
"I suppose so," Mr. Martin commented reminiscently. "I remember when I was a young man there was a girl—my heart was broken for a week—perhaps ten days—however, however—Then, abruptly changing the subject, he inquired, "What's my son going to work at?"
"I don't know yet," Mary said truthfully.
"Do you think he'll make good?"
"He will if he keeps at it."
"Well, you'll keep him at it, won't you?"
"That wasn't our agreement," said Mary. "I only undertook to get him to start to work."
"Hm!" went Mr. Martin, tapping the arm of his chair.
"Isn't that true?" demanded Mary quietly.
"Quite, quite," said Martin cannily. "I was just thinking we might make some agreement to have you keep him on the job."

"To keep him on the job?" echoed Mary faintly. "Here was a new complication if the soap king was proposing a second chapter in the deception. She had honestly meant to give the whole thing up. She truly did not want Rodney to get permanently interested in her. She had let him kiss her—the memory of his kisses still trembled on her lips—but she had done that for the boy's own good. Poor little secretary, pretty little Mary Grayson, what was she to think of things, how cleave her way through this tangle of motives that bound her heart and hands? She had let him kiss her, yes, but had it really been wrong in her? Was it—bad? No, she found her whole soul protesting, it was not wrong or bad. It had been for the boy's own good, she told herself again. She hugged the thought greedily, tasting a portion of that joy of women in giving herself up to some man for his good. But she would not spoil his life. She had been firm as to that. And now here was old Mr. Martin coming back at her with this hateful power of money and trying to bribe her to go on. What should she do?"

Suddenly, by a complete change of venue, her thoughts attacked the case from a different angle. She had been enough in the business world to know the power and use of money, and from a French grandfather she had inherited a streak of the keen and honest thrift. Let the rich people look out for themselves; the poor had to. Curiosity, too, set in, and helped dictate her answer when she finally made it.
"Well," she said at last enigmatically, "I'm a business woman."
Mr. Martin looked at her delightedly. "What strikes you as fair?" he asked

"I'd rather the proposition came from you," rejoined Mary.
"What do you say to your present salary, and at the end of the year I will personally give you a check for 25 per cent of what he has made?"
"That wouldn't interest me," said Mary.
"What's your proposition then?" asked Martin. "State your terms."
"My present salary doubled," said the business woman promptly.
"Um—that's pretty steep."
"You told me what I'd done already was worth $50,000 to you," retorted Mary.
"Merely a figure of speech, my dear," said Martin. "Let's see, you're getting $40 a week, and—"
"Fifty dollars, and I want $100."
"Sounds like a hold up."
"Then let's drop it. This new contract was your idea, not mine. Good evening!"
She moved to the door.
"Hold on, hold on," Martin cried after her. "I was simply figuring," he explained; "tell you what I'll do. Seventy-five dollars a week and 10 per cent of what he makes."

"All right, I'll go you," said Mary.
"Good," said Mr. Martin.
"Will you just write me a note stating the facts and consideration?" Mary pursued.
"Certainly."
He began to write, and as his pen moved across the paper Mary went on: "As soon as you see Rodney you'll have to discharge me."
"I will, violently. I'm a pretty good actor under your direction."

How to Prevent Croup.
It may be a surprise to you to learn that in many cases croup can be prevented. Mrs. H. M. Johns, Elida, Ohio, relates her experience as follows: "My little boy is subject to croup. During the past winter I kept a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy in the house, and when he began having that croupy cough I would give him one or two doses of it and it would break the attack. I like it better for children than any other cough medicine because children take it willingly, and it is safe and reliable." Obtainable everywhere.

LIBRARY NOTES.

New Books.

CLASSED BOOKS.

Formation of the Union 1750-1829, by A. B. Hart, is a political history of the United States, well constructed and provided with maps and classified lists of books.

Government of European Cities, by W. B. Munro. A book which should be of special interest to those in charge of our own city government, for as the author says, "The purpose of this volume is to explain the structure and functions of city government in three European countries, and to contrast these with the structure and functions of city government in the United States. It has been my aim to describe who the city authorities are, how they are chosen, what they do, and how they do it. Considerable attention has been devoted to the relations of the civic and state authorities in each of these countries (France, Prussia and England)."

Outlines of English Industrial History, by W. Cunningham & E. A. McArthur. Our existing society is the outcome of the life of preceding ages, hence we are forced to turn to the past if we wish to understand how present conditions have arisen.

Introduction.
Select orations illustrating American political history; sel. & ed. by S. B. Harding. These are stirring speeches delivered at the time of some of the most critical events of our nation's history.

Spoon River Anthology, by E. L. Masters; portraits suggested by the tombstones in towns on the Spoon River, Illinois. Is it poetry? Is it fiction? Is it literature? are the questions which are disturbing our ablest critics. What do you think about it?

FICTION.

Emma McChesney, by Edna Ferber. Heart's Kindred, by Zona Gale. High Priestess, by Robert Grant. K, by M. R. Rinehart. Rainbow Trail, by Zane Grey. Story of Julia Page, by Kathleen Norris.

CHILDREN'S BOOKS.

Colonial Children; sel. & annot. by A. B. Hart & B. E. Hazard. This is the first book of an entertaining series of Source-readers in American history. Teachers will find it adds interest to the study of history in the 7th and 8th grades.

Deal Woods, by Latta Griswold. A good boy's story.

Every day life in the colonies, by G. L. Stone & M. G. Fickett. Pictures of the customs of our forefathers for the younger children.

Lost Prince, by F. H. Burnett. This is a tale with the glamor of medieval romance, which centers about the mystery that five hundred years before Marco's day, the young prince of the kingdom of Samavia had walked away over the mountains, singing, and had never been heard from. And Marco, a lad of twelve, pledged to the future service of Samavia, lives an unpretentious, wandering life, trained in all worthy things by his father, till his journey as Bearer of the Sign is ended and his appointed time has come. A. L. A. Booklist. Mrs. Burnett is also the author of Little Lord Fauntleroy and of Sarah Crewe.

If you do not see any book in this list which you care to read, come to the Library and tell the Librarian your likes and dislikes, and she will find a book which is just to your taste. Miss Aiken is the librarian and Miss Stanfield is her assistant.

Do not forget that the Library now has a telephone (Main 286) and that it is there for you to use when any question comes up which you cannot answer from printed material you have at hand.

HOURS FOR OPENING.

10 a. m. to 8:30 p. m. daily
1 to 5 p. m. Sunday (reading only)

Change in the Story Hour.

The Saturday story hour has been changed to 3 p. m. as 2 o'clock was too early for the little ones. All children up to the fifth grade are invited.

Friday at 4 o'clock stories are told to the older children, from the fifth grade up.

Let all the children come. They will go home with brighter eyes and merrier hearts.

Beware of Cheap Substitutes.

In these days of keen competition it is important that the public should see that they get Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and not take substitutes sold for the sake of extra profit. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy has stood the test and has been approved for more than forty years. Obtainable everywhere.

CORRESPONDENT GIVES RECENT MEXICO HISTORY

Several Presidents Unable to Control People in Five Years—War Still Raging.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 18—Diaz dead in exile, Madero assassinated; Huerta exiled and under arrest; Villa an outlaw, and Carranza heading a "de facto" unestablished government, with civil war still raging.

This is the record of five years in Mexico, a nation prostrate today under fire, sword and famine. It is the record of a struggle for a real republican government, a real democracy, a republic in form and substance, a struggle of the masses against the classes.

Behind the curtain of arms on the stage of battlefields is the long stifled cry for land. The effort of Mexico's peons to own land and prevent exploitation and graft, both by their own and foreign citizens, are the underlying causes of what now promises to become in Mexican history the "Five Years' War."

The fight divides into 3 eras: those of Diaz, Madero, Huerta. Its immediate future rests with Carranza. Peace, but not liberty or equal individual opportunity, reigned under Diaz for a generation. As President and dictator the "Iron Man" was in power from 1884 to 1910. As a military idol on a platform of freedom and land distribution, Diaz led a revolution in 1875 against President Tejada. He was elected president in 1877, retiring in 1891 in favor of Manuel Gonzalez, being re-elected in 1884 and serving until forced to abdicate in 1910. Diaz was the exponent of special privilege. He held his office with ruthless military force. Graft flourished among his subordinates. Wealthy, educated Mexicans supported him. Foreign concessionaires thrived. Land barons extended their holdings. The poorer classes were slaves unable to rent or buy land.

Unprecedented Mexican development followed—for the wealthy. Peace prevailed.

Then came decay, with age, of Diaz' power. Outcry against the científicos, or wealthy, landed and educated classes increased. The peons demanded distribution of government land, relief from confiscatory taxes and a voice in elections. Soldiers presided over the polls, insuring Diaz' continued re-election. Wealthy and powerful private citizens, civil authorities and military heads failed to stem the tide of revolution.

The Madero movement was born in 1909. Francisco I. Madero, of a wealthy family of northern ranchers, led a new revolution. He promised social and economic reforms, including division of government lands and cancellation by the government of land patents given the científicos. Foreign exploitation of Mexico he also promised to end.

Aiding Madero was his brother, Gustav, and Pasquale Orozco. They organized a revolutionary army in Sonora. It soon seized Juarez and swept southward, reinforced by revolutionists from Chihuahua and other northern states, the hotbed of revolutionary activity. Historians differ as to whether Pancho Villa, later to become a popular hero, enlisted in the Madero movement.

Certain foreign mine, oil and ranch concessionaires supported Madero. Others supported Diaz, whose power weakened with age, his army honey-combed with treachery and desertion. Diaz resigned and fled to Paris, where he died last summer.

Francisco Madero was elected to the Presidency in 1910.
